Star on Washington Party.

Last week the Star and Sentinel contained the following editorial on the Washington Party in Adams county:

"During the past week the Washington Party management has sent out to prospective recruits to their cause an envelope which contained a type-written letter, already printed enrollment certificate ready for signature and what purports to be a newspaper clipping, which is in reality a special print by the 'Independent' of some of the 'North American's' recent utterances on the new enrollment law. It is in line with all the other literature from the same source. It decries the unscrupulous and corrupt machine of the Republican party and invites enrollment with the 'Reform Washington Party'."

In the minds of many of the voters who received this letter the effect is spoiled by the roster of officers that appears on the stationery. E. P. Sachs is chairman and among the list of Advisory Committee members appears the name 'William McIlhenny, Gettysburg R. D.' Inquiry reveals the fact that this reformer is none other than the Wm. B. McIlhenny who for a period of some 18 years held various offices in the county as a Republican and who for a like period controlled that party, exercising a one-man power in the old days of conventions. He always found in Sachs a very willing understudy and the combination continued as long as the offices lasted and the ear of the now despised senior Senator was turned in their direction. Taken as a whole the list of reformers who have assumed positions of leadership in the 'Washington' movement presents some funny cases, but that of these two is certainly the grotesque feature of the campaign.

Wonder if the 'William McIlhenny, Gettysburg R. D.' whose name appears on the letter that so roundly denounces Senator Penrose, might be the same William who less than a year ago was seeking the same Senator's influence for an appointment in the State Highway Department?"

Dance Given by Marine Officers.

The Commanding Officer and officers of the U. S. Marine Officers School, stationed here during the past month gave a most enjoyable dance in Glaffelter Hall on Friday evening, August twenty-second. Captain and Mrs. Van Orden, Mrs. Lehman and Mrs. Macron received the guests. The Hall was attractively decorated with the Navy and Marine colors and these with the full dress uniforms of the officers and the evening gowns of the young ladies made a very pleasing appearance. An orchestra from York furnished the music for a program of twenty-four numbers. During the intermission delicious refreshments consisting of sandwiches, olives, ices in the shapes of flowers and fruits, cakes, coffee and bonbons were served. R. E. Haas of College was the caterer.

The School disbanded on Saturday morning for a ten days leave, after which the Officers will resume their studies at Norfolk, Virginia.

Brethren Conference

The annual Ministerial and Sunday School Conference of the Church of the Brethren of the Southern District of Pennsylvania was held in East Berlin on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week. The Rev. J. A. Long, pastor of the Church of the Brethren, York, presided on Wednesday and Thursday. The Marsh Creek Brethren congregation sent as delegates to the conference Lemon Weaver and Miss Alma Kepner. Others attending the conference from here were Elder Albert Hollinger and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Lightner, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Jacobs, Mrs. Otella Heretor, Elder C. L. The committee in charge of the Ministerial meeting was Rev. J. A. Long, York, moderator, Henry Boehman, Jillsburg, assistant moderator, M. A. Jacobs, Waynesboro, secretary. The Sunday School Committee for the meeting was H. M. Stover, Waynesboro, moderator; M. A. Jacobs, Waynesboro, assistant moderator; H. H. Hollinger, Dover, secretary.

The ministerial conference opened on Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock. The meeting was in charge of Elder Green Snively, who delivered a sermon on the subject, "A Love Story."

At the meeting on Thursday morning "What Are Some of the Needs of Our Ministers of the Present Day?" was discussed by B. F. Lightner and

D. A. Faust. "How Should a Local Church Proceed in Arranging to Have Temperance Meetings in the Congregation?" was presented by John Miller and C. H. Steerman. A general discussion followed the presentation of all the subjects at the several days' conference. At the afternoon session Rev. J. A. Long presented the subject, "How Much of the Minister's Time Should be Given to the Church Without Compensation?" The other subject, "Is the Minister Justified in Not Giving to the Collections of the Church?" was discussed by Albert Hollinger.

The ministerial conference closed on Thursday evening with a missionary meeting. There were two talks on missionary subjects. "How to Create More Missionary Spirit in the Church," by J. H. Brindle and E. S. Miller, and "How Can Each Member be Led to Give Willingly More for the Lord's Cause?" by H. E. Stover and J. E. Trimmer.

The Sunday school meeting was opened on Friday morning. There was a short meeting for organization and discussion of a number of matters. The remainder of the morning was taken up by the presentation and discussion of two subjects, "What Constitutes a Well-Organized, Up-to-Date Sunday School?" by John Keller and M. A. Jacobs, Waynesboro, and "How Do You Dispose of the Review Sunday?" by J. J. Bowser and J. J. Baugher.

After the afternoon session was closed, the subjects discussed were, "What Are the Qualifications of a Successful Sunday School Teacher?" by Harry Hollinger and Mrs. Frances Letter; "The Delinquent Talents for the Sunday School," by Jessie B. Asper; "The Misused Talents in the Sunday School," by L. Elmer Leas; and "What Should be the Teacher's Aim," by Florence Hess and W. I. Shaeffer.

The Theological Seminary of this place scheduled to open on Tuesday, Sept. 9, will not open until Tuesday, Sept. 16. While the damages to the old dormitory from lightning and fire was fortunately small, yet it will take time until Sept. 16 to make everything in readiness for the opening of the institution.

The historic cupola destroyed by fire will be rebuilt along the lines of the old one, a replica of it, so that the old building will be preserved as it has always been known and remembered. Dr. J. A. Singmaster is busy superintending the work to be done to restore the cupola and make building ready for the opening.

The Seminary sent the Gettysburg Fire Company a donation of $25 last week in appreciation of the efficient services of the firemen.

Preacher Sues Synod Officials.

It is probable that the Seven Valleys Evangelical Lutheran church trouble will be aired in the York county court in the shape of a suit for damages, for Rev. John Erler has retained Jere S. Black, of York, who has filed a suit in trespass against the synod and church officials and it is intimated that he will demand $25,000 or $30,000 damages for illegal actions on the part of these officials. The defendants number more than a score of persons, Yorkers and others.

Those named in the suit are Rev. George M. Diffenderfer, of Carlisle, president of West Pennsylvania synod; Rev. Albert Bell, York, treasurer of West Pennsylvania synod; Rev. S. Hain, New Freedom, formerly an official of the New York synod, officials of the Seven Valleys, Scheuster's and Ziegler's congregation formerly served by Rev. Mr. Erler.

It is said that rumors reflecting on Rev. Mr. Erler's character followed him from his former pastorate in the New York synod to his York county charge, and these, said to be investigated by the West Pennsylvania synod, resulted in his being ousted as pastor of the three churches. By advice of his counsel, however, he remains in the parsonage. Mr. Erler claims that the actions on the part of the synod and church officials were not legal and that a considerable amount of salary has been improperly withheld from him.

The suit is brought against the above named persons as individuals. No statement of damages has yet been filed.

Miss Kate Briel has gone into homes with the helping hand that has been a God-send. During June she visited 18 different families. During July 23 families, and in a town of about 1,400 residences or families, that means more than one-fourth of the people have known the advantages of this new institution of the town.

A PRETTY SUMMER WEDDING

A FORMER GETTYSBURG BOY WINS A KENTUCKY BRIDE

They Will Live in the Blue Grass. State—Marriages of a Week in County.

McCURDY—BRANDIS.—The wedding of Miss Amy Brandeis and William Harold McCurdy, a former Gettysburg boy, son of Capt. John McCurdy, a native and resident of this place for years, and principal of our schools here, was solemnized Saturday, Aug. 16th, at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, River Road, Louisville, Ky. It was a very pretty summer wedding. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Lloyd Johnson, rector of Grace Episcopal Church. Misses Fannie and Jean Brandeis were the bridesmaids and Dr. Bruce McCurdy of Shippensburg, brother of the groom was best man. The ceremony took place in the music room before an altar formed of hydrangeas, combined with palms and ferns. The entire lower floor was charmingly decorated in quantities of potted plants, palms and hydrangea blossoms. A musical program was rendered preceding the ceremony. The bridal party entered from the stairway through an aisle of satin ribbons, held by four young attendants. The bride, who entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage, wore a gown of white charmeuse, combined with rose point lace and embroidered in seed pearls. She wore her mother's wedding veil of lace and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. The bridesmaids wore afternoon gowns of embroidered voile, cut low in the neck and half sleeves. They will stop at different places on their route. It is said they will be at home in York to friends after September 17. Dr. Wise is a well known physician of York. It took three cords of wood to do the baking which began at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. After the feasting there was a musical program and a jolly time.

INJUNCTION ASKED FOR TO PREVENT BUILDING OF A RINK

The Disadvantages of a Rink in a Residential part of the Town

A bill in equity was recently filed in our courts, in which C. S. Reaser and Wm. M. Henry are plaintiffs and John F. Walters defendant. Mr. Reaser owns a lot fronting 115 feet on Hanover street, on which he has erected a handsome residence. Mr. Henry has erected on adjoining lot of 151 1/2 feet a fine house and both are within 125 feet and 65 feet of a lot of ground on north side of Hanover St. bought by John F. Walters. In the bill the plaintiffs allege that when they bought these lots and built their homes Hanover street was and is now a residential street and free from disturbing noises, and annoyances from trades, occupations, business or nuisances.

The bill further sets out that the said John F. Walters has arranged and planned and is now preparing and intends to erect or construct upon his said lot of ground a certain building of such size and dimensions that practically the whole of his said lot will be occupied thereby, which said roller skating rink building is to have and contain a wooden floor or roller skating surface therein and the said defendant intends and has arranged and is about to open, operate and conduct the said building for use as a public roller skating rink.

The plaintiffs aver that the construction and operation of a roller skating rink upon lot of the defendant in a building constructed of metal and frame work with a wooden floor or roller skating surface therein will necessarily cause them, the said plaintiffs, and each of them respectively, special damage, injury, and loss in that the noise that will necessarily and unavoidably result from roller skating therein will necessarily and unavoidably disturb and affect their rest, pleasure, comfort, peace and health and will necessarily cause and result in great depreciation in the value of their, the said plaintiffs, respective lots, properties and residences and the plaintiffs will each of them respectively suffer great injury and irreparable damage.

An injunction was asked to restrain the erection of the rink by the defendant. The answer of defendant has not been filed yet and when filed the matter will be for the Court to hear and dispose of.

The building proposed by Mr. Walters he names "Garden Auditorium" and to be in the nature of an open air pavilion, with 9,000 square feet of floor space. The floor to be of maple and built for dancing while the pavilion to be adapted to the holding of fairs, festivals, socials and gatherings of all sorts. Arrangements will be made so that a stage can be provided should the place be desired for convention purposes. Movable chairs to be installed and drop curtains about the sides so that ample protection will be furnished in case of inclement weather.

New Parcel Post Rates in Effect.

Postmaster General Burleson last Friday Aug. 15 inaugurated the new regulations changing the parcel post rates and weight limit, by mailing President Wilson's box of five Georgia peaches. The box, which weighed seventeen pounds, with a postage charge of thirteen cents, was delivered at the White House early in the day. With it came a note in which the postmaster general said: "This is an illustration of the opportunity which has been opened to the farmer, the horticulturist, the manufacturer and to every citizen of the country who will avail himself of the valuable adjunct of the postal service in the promotion of the commerce and happiness of our people."

Mission of the Agricultural Fair.

The original mission of the Agricultural Fair, has largely been performed.

We have now come to another age in which a new kind of educational service is required by the fair. Originally it was more educational than intentionally instructive. Its chief function was to advertise the agricultural resources of this section. A new set of economic and social conditions have developed. They cannot properly be dealt with if we employ old methods. We require new bottles for the new wine which new and changing conditions produce. Our fathers laid a foundation and even built up a commanding institution, but they did not lay upon us the moral obligation to maintain the old structure after it outlived its usefulness.

It is sentimental stupidity to revere traditions and old methods that are worn out. Life is action. Change is the natural order. We must not live too long in the past. An old fact becomes a basal truth tomorrow. New blood, new methods, new points of view and new ideals are necessary to make the most splendid opportunities.

In this march of progress will be found the Great Hagerstown Fair, Oct. 14-17.

Its simple and crude work of years ago has been finished. It has earned the right to live and flourish. It has come down in a condition of vitality, and the great exhibition to held in October, with all its up-to-date features will be a fair that will pass down in history as one of the most successful ever held in the East.

A Pigeon Hills Mystery

A pair of shoes and stockings were burned in a mysterious manner at the home of Joseph Rickrode and wife, residing on the Pigeon Hills, Berwick township, one night last week. There is living with the Rickrode family a girl of about 13 years of age. Mr. Rickrode purchased a pair of new shoes and presented them to the girl, which she at once placed on her feet. In the evening when she retired, the girl placed the shoes and stockings on the floor by the side of her bed. Next morning when she arose she found nothing where the shoes and stockings were but a small heap of ashes, they having burned during the night, from some cause unknown; but nothing else was injured. Another strange thing is that no member of the household detected the odor of the burning leather until the following morning.

Story of a Wallet.

Bruce Wagner, of near Latimore, this county, owns and operates an auto truck taking fruits, vegetables, etc., a couple of times a week to the Harrisburg markets. He was returning home from his regular trip on Saturday, Aug. 9, when near Clear Spring he came upon a middle aged couple in an automobile which they could not move. Bruce is a clever, accommodating young man and he ran his machine a little distance ahead to the side of the road and then went back and cranked at the stranger's machine. In his exertion he became warm and took off his coat in which was a wallet containing about twelve dollars in cash and a certificate of deposit on a Dillsburg bank for $200 and laid it on the rear seat of the car. He finally succeeded in getting the car to go. The couple who were entire strangers to Mr. Wagner, whizzed merrily away taking with them the coat and wallet.

Mr. Vincent Martin, a former resident of Gettysburg, now residing at Harrisburg, where he is a railway mail clerk, furnishes the sequel to the story of the disappearing wallet.

Mr. Martin on Monday, Aug. 11th, called at the Dillsburg Bank and handed over to the cashier the wallet with cash and certified check and told how he was stuck along the road on the preceding Saturday, when Mr. Wagner, who was a stranger to him came along and helped him to start his machine. After going a short distance he noticed Mr. Wagner's coat and seeing a farmer working along the road handed him the coat and asked him to hand it to the man in the big automobile coming along the road. After going on his way again and while near Gettysburg his wife saw the wallet lying on the seat. Picking it up he opened it and saw the money and the certificate with Wagner's name, but no address. Not knowing how to find Wagner, he proceeded to Hanover, where they spent Sunday, concluding that on their way to their home on Monday he would leave the Wallet at the bank and get Mr. Wagner's address and write him a letter and explain the matter. Mr. Wagner was most agreeably surprised when he received wallet and contents last Wednesday.

C. J. Tyson, second vice president, is in charge of the Horticultural Department and chief exhibit will be apples on plates, in barrels and boxes.

The Poultry Department are constructing 400 coops in addition to those of last year, to give a capacity for 1500 birds. The Klinefelter barrel factory will be used for exhibition purposes, the old building 50x130 for the apples, corn and potatoes, and the new building, 30x150 ft. for the poultry.

Persons expecting to exhibit should send their names to J. C. Rice, Secretary, Biglerville, Pa., to be placed on the mailing list.

Shatt Pierced Horse.

A driving accident in which three teams figured, one horse being killed, one person injured and a buggy wrecked, occurred on Saturday night, Aug. 9, on the Carlisle pike near the Brethren Meeting House, some distance beyond Hampton. Charles Dicks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Haines B. Dicks, residing near Round Hill, was driving along the pike on his way home, when his team collided with the team of some unknown person going in the opposite direction. Mr. Dicks was thrown to the pike and one of his arms and one of his legs were badly injured, besides sustaining minor bruises about the body. The unknown person continued on his way. The collision caused the horse of Mr. Dicks to run away, and in his mad rush he met the team of Charles Stock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Stock, residing at Arendt's Mill, near Waldheim, who was also driving in the opposite direction. The end of a shaft of the runaway team pierced the breast of the Stock horse and penetrated the body to the depth of about three feet. The animal fell to the road and died in less than 10 minutes. The Dicks horse escaped uninjured, but the buggy was an almost complete wreck. The animal killed, was owned by young Stock's father, and was known as the speedy pacing black family mare, which was valued at $250. The accident happened near the home of Jacob Miller, who on being aroused, kindly harnessed two of his mules and pulled the dead animal out of the way. Young Stock escaped injury, and his buggy was only slightly damaged.

J. H. Mehring of Littlestown shipped two carloads of poultry and ducks last week to Allamont, N. Y., where he will be an exhibitor at the Albany County Fair next week. Mr. Mehring who is a large poultry breeder, will remain in New York State for five weeks attending fairs, returning about the time of the Carlisle fair, where he will show and wind up the season at the Hagerstown fair in October. He has been in the chicken business for about 16 years.

Snapping Turtles Fight and Lose.

Howard Gardner of Latimore township was out fishing one night recently and witnessed a peculiar fight between two snapping turtles. After watching the contest for a time, Mr. Gardner jumped into the creek and hauled them forth. The turtles weighed 12 pounds each.

NOTICE.

The Commissioners of Adams County met the Assessors of the several election districts of the county on Monday, August 11, 1913, and gave instructions for the Primary Enrollment of Voters in accordance with an Act of Assembly recently approved by the Governor.

The Commissioners have ruled that in order to guarantee to every elector, who declares his political preferences, the privileges of the Primary Election provided for in the Act, he will be required to sign an Enrollment Certificate setting forth his party preference.

A verbal declaration on the part of the Elector, in the ruling of the Commissioners, does not fully guarantee the rights of the Elector, nor does it protect the Assessor, the Commissioners' office or the Election Board against disputes that may arise in Registries and Check Lists.

An Elector will not be denied a vote at the November Election if he refused to declare his political preference to the Assessor, but he will not be entitled to vote a partisan ballot at the Primary Election.

By order of the Commissioners,
N. R. BEAMER,
S. M. KEAGY,
S. Mc. EICHOLTZ,
Commissioners.

Dream on, Kid!

A little girl in Linwood is just about old enough to have a bean, and she is perfectly crazy about any pompadorred, tall, skinny lad that—well, let us tell our little incident without adding adjectives.

The maiden's lovely boy friend went out of town for a week, but she wrote letters. And the maiden's sister started kidding.

"What?" exclaimed sis. "Another letter from Rob? When do you expect to marry him, dear?"

"Oh, very soon," cried the little one, encouraged by such a display of sympathy. "Robert has only two years more in the preparatory school. And then he will go to Harvard and be graduated with the highest honors. After he gets his degree he will go out west and make his fortune, and then we shall be married. Oh, it all seems so beautiful!"

"Dream on, kid!" exclaimed the older sister tenderly. "Do you want to go to another picture show with me this evening? There's a long time to wait, and we've got to put in the time somehow."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Honeymoon Once Chaproned.

In "Books and Bookmen" it is observed that "in the eighteenth century it was not considered bon ton for a young couple to go on a honeymoon without a chaperon. The practice must have survived into the last century, for in 'Mansfield Park,' when Maria Bertram marries Mr. Rushworth, Julia, the younger sister, goes with them." The custom certainly lingered on, in out of the way places at least, till the middle of the nineteenth century.

"My mother," writes a correspondent in the Manchester Guardian, "was married in 1853. Before that date she had been the bridesmaid of a girl friend who had married a young lawyer. They both came of middle class families in very comfortable circumstances. She went with them on their honeymoon. She always assured us that in those faraway days it was quite the correct thing for the bridesmaid to form one of the party."

Living Cups and Saucers.

The foot of the limpet is a kind of sucking disk by which it anchors itself securely to the rocks. Its tiny tongue is in reality a wonderful horny structure armed with about 100 rows of teeth, with which it rasps the seaweeds and marine litter which form its food.

There are several branches of the limpet family. One is called the "key-hole" limpet and another the "cup and saucer." The former owes its name to a keyhole-shaped opening on the top through which the animal—for the limpet is really an animal—squirts out water.

The "cup and saucer" limpet has on its under-side a sort of curved plate, not unlike a tiny teacup, surrounded by a saucer-like shell. To complete the resemblance there is at the extremity of the long tooth ribbon an organ not unlike a miniature teaspoon.

The Demon Barber.

The story of the "demon barber," his misdirected energy and undue personal attention to customers, a story that has been made famous in ballad and on the stage, was this: He lived at 189 Fleet street, London, next to St. Dunstan's church. Under his shaving chair there was a trapdoor. When Mr. Todd, making some excuse, left his customer—or client, for this is now the gentler term—and went into an adjoining room he drew a bolt. The trapdoor turned over and threw the customer into a cellar. There he was murdered, and his body was made into mutton pies, which were sold at a neighboring shop at a reasonable price and much relished. This story was believed by all for many years, and Dickens mentions it in "Martin Chuzzlewit," yet it was without foundation.

Knew Her Way.

The ladies were discussing a wedding which took place in their church the previous day. "And, do you know," continued the first best informed lady of the party, "just as Frank and the widow started up the aisle to the altar every light in the church went out?" This startling bit of information was greeted by a number of "ohs." "What did the couple do?" finally inquired one. "Kept on going. The widow knew her way."—Pitt Mail Gazette.

Keeping Tab.

"What is the name of this station?" "Blue Island, sir." "Thanks, may I ask—" "Why it's called Blue Island when it's neither blue nor an island? I don't know, sir, unless it's just because it had to have a name. You're No. 15, 729."—Chicago Tribune.

Cheering Her Up.

PARCEL POST PREDICTIONS

WILL SOON HANDLE ALL THE SMALL PACKAGES.

It Will Likely Go to a Limit of 100 Pounds in a Very Short Time.

It is the opinion of Representative David J. Lewis, of Maryland, one of the parcel post experts of the House of Representatives, that the post-office department, before a great while, will make another extension of the parcel post system, removing the express companies as competitors of the postal service in the handling of small packages. After the postmaster general shall have completed his program for the enlargement of the parcel post, the only rates in the new express schedules that will be cheaper than the parcel post rates, will be a few charges on 100-pound packages traveling 1000 miles or more.

"The express companies are correct when they say they cannot handle a small shipment for less than 25 cents," says Mr. Lewis. "Verified figures submitted by them prove that they make only two cents profit on average shipments of 33 pounds with an average charge of 31 cents. The postoffice department at the same time, however, is making at least one cent, and probably two cents, on one-pound shipments at the average rate of five cents."

"The government's system of collection and distribution costs less than one-third as much as the same service to the express companies, and in the end it must be that the government will supplant the companies for the most of the business. The express companies on a 25-cent shipment, pay 12 cents to the railroads for a haul of approximately 150 miles under existing contracts, which means that the railroads get 50 per cent of the total charge. This leaves 13 cents for the express companies to pay for collection and delivery, including the costly system of a dozen or more handlings. Eleven of these handlings are replaced in the postoffice department by the postage stamp. On a shipment of five pounds the new postal rate will be nine cents for 150 miles, of which the railroads will get three cents, as compared with 12 cents which they get from the express companies."

"Of course, the postmaster-general is not to stop at the 20-pound limit, but will go on until, as he says, the 100-pound limit has been reached. It is equally certain that he will rationalize the rates for longer distances to the point of a slight profit over the cost of service."

Mr. Lewis says he believes that the express companies will ultimately get some of the freight business of the railroads on large shipments for distance points. He says the coast-to-coast express rates for 100 pounds have been reduced from $12 to $8. The first class freight rate for those distances is $3.70. It would thus be cheaper to ship by express 25 pounds at a cost of .2, than to send by first class freight at the 100-pound minimum rate of $3.70.

There are many public men who agree with Mr. Lewis' conclusion. The day of the parcel post, these men believe, is just beginning. The new idea has taken the country quite by storm. No similar move by the government for many years has become immediately so popular, or has affected so many people. Everybody likes the parcel post, and everybody is patronizing it. The result will be, public men say, that the system will have to be extended as rapidly as circumstances will permit, until it has been made to take the place of more expensive means of shipment.

The controversy between the railroads and the government for more pay for the parcel post business probably will begin in Congress next winter, when it will be pointed out to committees of Congress that the railroads are now carrying at the low parcel post rate certain commodities which under the old system brought a higher rate by express. The parcel post thus threatens to cut into the revenues of the railroads to some extent. Congress in the end of course will arrive at some equitable adjustment of this matter, but there will be none that interferes with the onward march of the parcel post system to a state of perfection.

Bishop Doane on His Dog.

"I am quite sure he thinks that I am God— Since he is God on whom each one depends For life, and all things that his bounty sends— My dear old dog, most constant of all friends: Not quick to mind, but quicker far than I To Him whom God I know and own: his eye, Deep brown and liquid, watches for my nod: He is more patient underneath the rod Than I, when God His wise corrections sends. He looks love at me, deep as words e'er spoke: And from me never crumb nor sup will take But he wags thanks with his most vocal tail: And when some crashing noise wakes all his fear, He is content and quiet if I am near. Secure that my protection will prevail, So faithful, mindful, thankful, trustful, he Tells me what I unto my God should be."—

The Open Window.

A Medical Inspector of the Philadelphia Public Schools, with the co-operation of teachers and parents, recently made an experiment to determine the value of cold fresh air in school rooms, which was reported in the American Journal of Public Health. He opened the windows at ten and eleven, and let them open throughout the winter. The room was shut off from the heating plant of the building except on the occasional days when the temperature fell below forty degrees below zero, but the children of course were extra warm and had less

Week by week during the fall and winter and spring this physician weighed and examined the pupils, watched their study and their play and compared their progress in health and cheerfulness with that of pupils in another room of the same building. In that other room, the pupils were of the same grade, and of about the same number, but the room was heated and ventilated according to the usual methods. The pupils in both rooms were normal healthy children from the same kind of homes, so that the test was as fair, accurate and searching as possible.

At the end the Inspector found that the pupils in the Open-Window room had gained on an average more than twice as much as those in the warm air room. The pupils in the open room kept wholly free from colds, and were much more regular in attendance than the others. They were also more alert, free from day-dreaming, quicker to learn, needed less review work and were better behaved. In health and happiness, in development both of mind and body, the children of the room with open windows had a clear advantage over the others.

In these days, the gospel of Sunshine and pure air ought to need little preaching. Most of us accept it, but we do not always practice the doctrine that we believe in and preach. This Philadelphia experiment lay not in giving the Open-Air treatment to sick children—which everyone approves; it lay in giving to well children some of the good things that Nature intended that they should enjoy, and in demonstrating to the School Officials and parents the advantages of lower school room temperatures.

As a result the School Board, recognizing their value, has authorized the establishment of Open Window Classes in several other Philadelphia schools.

Chattanooga G. A. R. Encampment.

The program of entertainment for the 47th national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, to be held at Chattanooga, September 15-20, is about complete, and it is one of the most attractive programs ever offered by a city entertaining the union veterans.

Chief among the events is a sham battle to be fought between regiments of the regular army on Chickamauga battlefield, concluding at historic Snodgrass Hill. This event has been arranged for the entertainment of the old soldiers, primarily; but it will be of interest to all visitors. The Chattanooga Encampment Association believes that it will be more enjoyable for the old soldiers to make them the spectators of a sham battle rather than the actors in it. Hence, it will be fought by regular troops of the U. S. Army.

The most spectacular feature of the program will be the reproduction of the "Battle Above the Clouds" in fireworks. This spectacle, of course, will be staged on Lookout Mountain, nearly 2,500 feet above sea level and fifteen hundred feet above the valley in which Chattanooga is situated. It will be one of the greatest fireworks spectacles ever seen in the United States, and will be visible for a hundred miles in all directions.

Signal fires will be lighted every morning on Signal Point, north of the city, reproducing signal fires that burned there during the Chattanooga campaign in 1863. These bonfires will be plainly visible from the city of Chattanooga, as they were during the war. A large hotel has been erected near Signal Point, on Signal Mountain, and this will be filled with guests during the encampment. Signal Mountain is reached in thirty minutes from the city by trolley cars and automobiles.

A collision between two passenger trains at Warner park, just east of the residential sections of the city, is another important number on the amusement program. Two passenger trains, going at the rate of forty miles an hour will collide on straight track in front of spectators in a large grandstand. This spectacle has been witnessed in but two places in the United States, once in Indianapolis and once at Brighton Beach. Warner park is the largest children's playground in the southern states, has a railway track running along one side of it, and is splendidly adapted in every other way for the exhibition.

A steamboat reception and dinner to visiting officials of the G. A. R. will be an enjoyable event of the encampment. The visitors will be taken for an excursion by prominent Chattanooga people and given a reception on the Tennessee River. Hydroplane flights will also be given daily on the Tennessee River during the encampment.

Another attractive exhibition to instruct and entertain the visitors will be a model device reproducing the Panama Canal. This model of the big ditch is large enough to permit the passage through a canal of a good-sized, miniature steamboat. The purpose of the model is to show how large ocean going vessels will be floated through the Panama Canal.

There will be a number of regimental and brigade reunions during encampment week, of interest largely to old soldiers. Wilder's brigade will hold a reunion, as will also the Army of the Cumberland. Many of the regiments that fought in the Chattanooga battles will hold reunions, the dates to be announced later.

Battlefield reunions are also being arranged by a special committee. These reunions will be for survivors of each battle fought here and will be held on the battlefields. The battlefields included are Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge, each held to have a reunion day.

The "PURE FOOD LAW" is designed by the Government to protect the public from injurious ingredients in both foods and drugs. It is beneficial both to the public and to the conscientious manufacturer. Ely's Cream Balm, a successful remedy for cold in the head, nasal catarrh, hay fever, etc., containing no injurious drugs, meets fully the requirements of the new law, and that fact is prominently stated on every package. It contains none of the injurious drugs which are required by the law to be mentioned on the label. Hence you can use it safely.

Judge Kunkel Honored.

The people of Dauphin county have made a wonderful attestation to the personal and judicial qualifications of Judge George Kunkel. He has been on the Bench of that county for ten years and without any opposition his name has been placed on the Democratic, Republican, Washington and non-partisan primary ballots, giving him the rare honor of a unanimous re-nomination and re-election. He has been given a spontaneous endorsement such as has never before been given in that county to any candidate for office. Judge Kunkel has dispensed justice absolutely divorced from politics and without bias and his judicial career is one every judge in the old Keystone State could emulate with profit.

The "Star Independent" of Harrisburg said last week editorially of this demonstration of the people of Dauphin county, as follows:

"This means only one thing: that Judge Kunkel has made good in the estimation of men of every political faith including those who opposed his election in the exceedingly bitter political fight of 1903.

"It will be recalled that the chief opposition to Judge Kunkel in that fight was on the part of those who were suspicious of what might be the influence of the machine men who conducted his campaign. Judge Kunkel was untired then in a position on the bench. There were thousands of voters in that campaign who felt that a man elected by the machine might at least subconsciously be susceptible to 'machine' influence after election.

"Judge Kunkel has proved that he was far above any such influences. No other proof need be cited than his unbiased decisions in the famous Capitol furnishing graft cases which involved many of the most influential men of the Republican machine in the state who were convicted and punished after trials in his court. Judge Kunkel's decisions at that time were sustained by the Supreme Court of the State and his whole conduct of the trials won him a reputation that is more than statewide, as an impartial jurist of rare mental attainments and, more important than that, as a judge above the influence of ring rule.

More Pay for Jury Commissioners.

Jury commissioners to be elected in Adams county next fall will be among those who will benefit financially by act approved by Governor Tener several weeks ago, they will receive $1 a day instead of $2.50 a day at present, for their services in addition to mileage.

The act amends a law of 1867 which provided for the compensation which has been paid ever since. In some counties in the State it was thought that the pay for jury service had been increased to $1 a day.

The measure which gives the jury commissioners an increase of 60 per centum in their allowance is as follows:

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That section five of an act, approved the tenth day of April 1867, entitled an act for the better and more impartial selection of persons to serve as jurors in each of the counties of this commonwealth," which reads as follows:

Section 3. Each of said jury commissioners shall be allowed and paid out of the respective county treasury $2.50 per day and four cents per mile circular from the residence of the commissioners to the court house, is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 5. Each of said jury commissioners shall be allowed and paid out of the respective county treasury $1 per day, and four cents per mile circular from the residence of the commissioners to the court house.

The Hanover Fair Sept. 16-19.

The 29th annual Fair of the Hanover Agricultural Society, to be held at Hanover, Pa., Sept. 16, 17, 18 and 19, 1913, promises to far surpass any exhibition ever given by the Society; the management is actively engaged in providing an exhibition which will be highly enjoyed by visitors from all sections.

The principal object of the Fair is to exhibit the resources and products of our State and County, and to stimulate its people to greater efforts for the improvement and development of the State and County's agricultural and mechanical resources.

The Association has the most beautiful park-like grounds in the State, with large and commodious buildings for exhibits, large Grand Stand, Good Stables, and one of the best half-mile tracks in the State. These beautiful grounds are worth while going to see.

A special feature of the 1913 Fair will be the large Poultry Exhibit. This Department is fast approaching the foremost ranks of exhibits of this kind to be found anywhere in the country.

There will be special amusement features daily during the Fair, and no expense will be spared by the Management to make all visitors enjoy themselves to the utmost.

Trotting and pacing races each day for prizes aggregating $4,000. Remember the dates, Sept. 16, 17, 18 and 19, 1913, and visit the Hanover Fair.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

PROVISIONS OF THE NEW LAW ESTABLISHING IT.

The State to Pay Two-thirds of the Expenses for This New Vocational Education.

The important provisions of the Act of Assembly of this year establishing vocational education as specially applicable to the boroughs and townships of Adams county are as follows:

"Vocational education" shall mean any education, the controlling purpose of which is to fit for profitable employment.

"Industrial education" shall mean that form of vocational education which fits for the trades, crafts, and manufacturing pursuits including the occupations of girls and women, carried on in workshops.

"Agricultural education" shall mean that form of vocational education which fits for the occupations connected with the tillage of the soil, the care of domestic animals, forestry, and other wage-earning productive work on the farm.

"Household arts education" shall mean that form of vocational education which fits for occupations connected with the household.

"Industrial, agricultural, or household arts school" or "department" or "vocational school or department" shall mean a distinctive organization of courses, pupils, and teachers approved by the State Board of Education, designed to give either industrial, agricultural, or household arts education, as herein defined.

The State Board of Education is hereby authorized and directed to investigate, and to aid in the introduction of, industrial, agricultural, and household arts education: to assist in the establishment of schools and departments for the aforesaid forms of education, and to inspect and approve such schools or departments as are hereinafter provided. The State Board of Education shall make a report annually to the Governor and Legislature describing the condition and progress of industrial, agricultural, and household arts education during the year, and making such recommendations as the board may deem advisable.

Any school district may, through its board of school directors, establish and maintain industrial, agricultural, and household arts schools or departments.

Two or more districts may establish and maintain industrial, agricultural, or household arts schools or departments, to be known as joint vocational schools or departments.

Local school boards and joint school committees administering approved industrial, agricultural, or household arts schools or departments, may, under a plan to be approved by the State Board of Education, appoint an advisory committee composed of members representing local trades, industries, and occupations. It shall be the duty of such a committee to counsel with and advise the local or joint board of trustees, and other school officials, having the management and supervision of such schools.

Any resident of any school district in Pennsylvania which does not maintain an approved industrial, agricultural, or household arts school or department, offering the type of training which he desires, may make application to the school board of any other district for admission to such school or department maintained by said board. In case said board refuses him admission, he may apply to the State Board of Education for admission to such school or department. The State Board of Education—decisions of which shall be final—may approve or disapprove such application. In making such decision the State Board of Education shall take into consideration the opportunities for free vocational training in the community in which the applicant resides, the financial status of the community, the age, sex, preparation, aptitude, and previous record of the applicant, and all other relevant circumstances.

The school district in which the person resides, who has been admitted, as above provided, to an approved industrial, agricultural or household arts school or department maintained by another school district, shall pay a tuition fee, to be determined after the same manner provided for the high schools.

Industrial, agricultural, and household arts school or departments shall, so long as they are approved by the State Board of Education as to organization, control, location, equipment, courses of study, qualifications of teachers, methods of instruction, conditions of admission, employment of pupils, and expenditures of money, constitute approved local or joint vocational schools. School districts maintaining such approved local or joint vocational schools or departments shall receive reimbursement as hereinafter provided.

The Commonwealth, in order to aid in the maintenance of approved local or joint industrial, household arts, and agricultural schools or departments, shall, as provided in this act, pay annually from the treasury to school districts and unions of school districts, maintaining such schools or departments, an amount equal to two-thirds the sum which has been expended during the previous school year by such a school district, or districts, for instruction in practical subjects and in such related technical and academic subjects as may be necessary to complete well-rounded courses of training. Provided, No one school district shall receive more than five thousand dollars in any one school year.

School districts that have paid claims for tuition in approved local or joint vocational schools or departments shall be reimbursed by the Commonwealth, as provided in this act, to extent of one-half the sum expended by such school districts in payment of such claims.

Party Enrollment Views.

The Democrats of Pennsylvania seem to be the only ones who are wholly satisfied with the new party enrollment law. The reason for Democratic satisfaction is the fact that Democrats are proud to enroll themselves as such, having no reason to be ashamed of their party, and the further fact that they want to put a stop to all time to party raiding. Democrats can see no reason why any man should hesitate to announce his party allegiance as a preliminary to taking part in the nomination of party candidates. In fact such announcement was necessary under the old law, the weakness of the old system being that there was no effective means of preventing members of one party calling for primary ballots of another party, with the result that it was possible—and frequently done—to secure the nomination of weak candidates in order to make their defeat easy, or to foist candidates of the opposition on to the party ticket. Democrats want honest nominations and honest elections, and they welcome the party enrollment law as a long step toward securing honest primaries.

WASHINGTON WOE.

The Democratic view does not seem to be wholly shared, however, either by the old Republican machine or the new Washington party organization. Washington party organs are rending the air with shrieks over the alleged discovery of a vile plot on the part of the Penrose standpatners to steal the Washington party organization by means of the new law. Just how the thing is to be worked is not made clear unless it is conceded that Washington party members are not keen to maintain their party allegiance, and that a sufficient number of them are ready to betray their party into the hands of the Penrose Philistines. Certainly if Washington party members are loyal and are sincerely desirous of perpetuating their party, there is no way by which the Penrose crowd can gain control. All that is necessary is for Washington party members to see that they are properly enrolled as such. All parties are on exactly the same basis so far as enrollment is concerned and it should be no greater hardship for a Washington partisan to declare himself than it is for a Republican or a Democrat. The fears of the new party leaders seem to be groundless, except on the theory that there is a disinclination of the Washington party voters of last year to align themselves fairly and squarely with the new party as an institution of the coming campaign.

PARTY BARS PUT UP.

But it is difficult to see how they can avoid this very thing if they vote in the primaries at all. The party enrollment law makes it compulsory for them to enroll, under the party designation for which they voted in the previous November election, as a requisite to voting in the primary this year. No person who voted the Washington party ticket last year has the moral or legal right to enroll this year as a Republican or a Democrat.

The law is very specific on this point—and right here, apparently, is where the Penrose Machine fell asleep at the switch when the party enrollment bill was passed. The regular Republicans in the Legislature supported the bill and by so doing they effectively put up the bars against Washington party voters returning to the Republican party. Belated realization of this fact is causing beads of sweat to stand out on the massive brows of the Republican Machine leaders. They didn't mean to do it—but they've done it, nevertheless. The only way a Washington party man can get back into the Republican party, as a primary voter, under this law is to sneak back in when nobody is looking—to violate the letter and spirit of the law by maintaining that he voted for a majority of Republican candidates last November when as a matter of fact he supported the Washington ticket.

McAdoo Seeks for Young Men.

Wm. G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury in the Cabinet of President Wilson is now in the bustling forties of life and in a talk for young men recently said:

"No matter what situation in life you occupy, no matter how humble it is, make it your rule to do your work better than any one ever did it before. I do not care how insignificant the part, if you have the spirit and the ambition and you do your duty better than anybody else ever did it, the time will come when your superior will notice the fact, and when he wants some one for a more responsible position he will pick the man who has exhibited these qualities."

Mr. McAdoo is not a believer in what is commonly known as luck.

"A man largely creates his own opportunities," he will tell you. "Some one may give him his first chance, but after that he attracts opportunity by the demonstration of his ability. Just as unerringly as the needle turns to the pole, Success is largely what each one makes it."

And here Mr. McAdoo set down some maxims:

"Character is the essential thing: it is the fortune of life."

"A man who does his work better than any one else has ever done it can always arrive."

"There is plenty of room at the top; but one must go to the bottom of things before he can reach the top."

"Concentration is a keynote to success."

"Every good citizen should recognize his debt to the community in which he lives."

He holds that courtesy, while not essential to success, is a tremendous asset, which costs nothing and pays big dividends. Moreover, for the corporation it is sound, common sense. As for the individual it is the easiest and surest way of smoothing the path of life.

The success of a man is due largely to the opportunities which the community itself offers for the exercise of his abilities. The community affords the opportunity; the man, if he has the right metal in him, makes the most of it.

A man must believe in the thing he undertakes to do. He must throw his whole soul into it with the determination to dare and do—or die.

At the same time there is so much room in the world that one, no matter how successful, should cultivate the spirit of live and let live.

And it isn't the man with the most money that is the greatest success in life. Says Mr. McAdoo:

"The man who makes material gain the sole purpose of existence may accumulate vast riches, but he does it too frequently at the expense of many of the finer qualities, and in the end he comes out poorer than the man who has achieved less in a material sense but who has done more in a humanitarian sense."

Here he cited by way of illustration a visit—once paid to a chrysanthemum show. He was surprised to find the flowers exhibited there much larger than any he had been able to rear in his garden. A grower explained that this was accomplished by stripping the stem of all the buds except one, so that it might be possible to concentrate upon one flower all the strength of the plant.

"There," he went on, "you have a striking parallel with the development of the modern leader of men and affairs. That he may achieve a large and material success he too often strips himself of the buds which represent the versatile and finer qualities of human nature and concentrates all the force at his command upon the development of the one flower—the blossom of material gain."

"And when this has reached its full growth and begins to fade there are no other buds to blossom, no other resources upon which he may fall back, and the greatest fortune of life—the full development of man's truer and finer self—has not been attained."

Mr. McAdoo holds that while achievement has its value and affords great satisfaction, no achievement can be compared to that which contributes to the enduring good of humanity itself.

According to his belief honesty should never be practised as a mere matter of policy, but as a standard of right and truth. To teach that "honesty is the best policy" will do harm. But with honesty as a rule of right, truth and action, coupled with a spirit of enthusiasm, success is certain.

"The individual," declares Mr. McAdoo, "is inevitably the power behind endeavor; others may try to help him, but he alone can give the crowning touch."—New York Sun.

Lost Boy Found.

Howard Trimmer, aged seventeen years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Trimmer, of East Berlin, who disappeared from the farm of Jonas Burgard Aug. 15th, was found Aug. 17th at 2 p. m. on the top of a haystack on the farm of Samuel Mummert, near Big Mount. When found the young man was very weak, not having had anything to eat or drink for more than 48 hours. He required medical attention.

His disappearance had created considerable excitement in this section, and when no trace of him had been found, the fact of his being missing was announced from all the pulpits in East Berlin.

Fifty persons were searching for Trimmer on Friday and Saturday, but after the announcements made in the churches, nearly 200 persons started out at noon to look for him.

The start was made from the Burgard farm. After ninety acres of corn had been gone over by the searching party, Trimmer was found lying on the top of a haystack on the Mummert farm. Dr. Eugene Elgin, of East Berlin, was summoned and he attended to the medical needs of young Trimmer, whose condition through weakness was alarming. When he was sufficiently revived he was questioned as to his motive in running away, but no information as to his wandering or reasons for leaving the Burgard farm, where he had been employed for two years, could be obtained from him.

Trimmer had been sent by Mr. Burgard into a field at 9 a. m., Friday, to help in the construction of a ditch. After a while he walked away from his work and disappeared. Police headquarters in York was notified by the boy's father of his disappearance, Saturday, and a full description of the young man was given.

Gettysburg Citizens Gladly Testify and Confidently Recommend Doan's Kidney Pills.

It is testimony like the following that has placed Doan's Kidney Pills so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voice in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Gettysburg citizen:

John A. Tawney, 234 Baltimore St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I still use Doan's Kidney Pills, in fact I always keep them in the house. I take a few doses occasionally and they keep my kidneys in good working order. I suffered off and on from pains in the kidneys. I was so lame and stiff that I could hardly get out of bed. Some one advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a supply at the People's Drug Store. It didn't take them long to give me relief. Indian Relic Collection.

One of the largest collections of rare old Indian relics in this state is owned by Harry E. Hoak, of Highspire. In Mr. Hoak's collection, there are over 12,000 pieces, which range from the common flint arrowhead to the rarest of all Indian relics, the medicine man's sacred "pouring tube," of which there is only one in the Academy of Natural Science in Philadelphia.

The idea of making a collection of Indian relics first entered Mr. Hoak's mind when he was a young man visiting his father near Marsh Run, Pa. He was strolling around on his father's island at that place when he found a "celt," which is a sharp stone tool used by the primitive Indians to carve meat. Since that time he has been an enthusiastic collector.

In Mr. Hoak's collection there are 10,000 arrowheads, mostly of flint, but many of jasper, which is the rarest of all arrowhead materials: 200 stone axes, ranging from the small three-inch ax used to hew out logs for boats to the deadly tomahawks; four iron axes traded by the first settlers in Pennsylvania to the Indians; about a dozen flint "scrapers," used by the Indians to scrape hides for their wigwams and robes; 100 celts, or cutting stones; forty jasper flint knives; one jasp, a stone used to pattern moccasins; two sacred tubes, used by the medicine men of the tribe to pour their medicine; several Indian pipes; hammer stones, used to grind meal and crush grain; stone hoes, used in tilling the soil; three paint stones, used by the Indians, in which they mixed their paint before going on the war-path; five soapstone pots from 8 to 28 inches across the top and holding from 2 quarts to 5 gallons; several pieces of wampum, or Indian money, and one soapstone water bottle taken from the grave of an Indian in Arizona.

One of the soapstone bowls owned by Mr. Hoak has a capacity of ten quarts and weighs slightly over fifty pounds. This bowl was dug from a grave of an Indian burying ground on Hoak's island, near Marsh Run, Pa. For this bowl Mr. Hoak has been offered $200. Although some few of these rare old relics were found in Arizona and other western states, the most of them were gathered in the valley of the Susquehanna and the greatest number in Dauphin county.

Blue Mt. House Insurance.

The insurance adjusters met with the directors of the Blue Mountain House Company on the site of the destroyed hotel last week and adjudged the hotel a total loss and the insurance of $50,000 will be paid.

There is said to be little hope of recovering any quantity of gold or precious stones belonging to the guests. It was proposed to sift the ashes but an experiment along this line has not proven worth while. Mr. Loppheimer of Baltimore spent two days last week sifting bushels of ashes underneath the location of the room occupied by his wife and daughter, who lost jewelry worth $8,000.

He found some molten metal but only a very small part of the total amount lost. One of the pieces recovered was part of a gold mesh bag, into which his wife had thrust $400 when the alarm of fire was given. She was making her way from the room with this when some one called her and she dropped bag and money. Mr. Loppheimer found portions of his wife's trunk one morning. The hinges, corner pieces and some charred wood constituted the sum of this. An expensive la valier, containing a number of diamonds, set in platinum, the diamonds weighing from four carats down, was sought for by him but not found. Instead, he came across a button from one of his suits he had never worn. Underneath his daughter's room, Mr. Loppheimer found a gold la valier that had been melted into a lump; two silver quarters, welded together, and few other pieces of jewelry in the ruined trunk. Most peculiar find of all was a lump of gold on which could be discerned the initials of his daughter. This was all of some gold article that was recognizable.

It was necessary to dynamite the hotel safe in order to open it. Two sticks of dynamite were used. Everything in the safe, including paper money, jewelry, books, documents, etc., were found destroyed, with the exception of the silver money which amounted to $50. There were several hundred dollars in paper money in the safe, and the jewelry that was destroyed, owned by Mrs. Schultz, who conducted a stand in the hotel lobby, was valued at several hundred dollars. The delay in opening the safe was due to the fact that it had not yet cooled. It was still almost red hot when it was blown open.

Dressmaking on the Boulevards.

This picture of life in the French capital is given in Frankfort Sommer-ville's "In the Spirit of Paris."

An industrious woman at a newspaper kiosk sat making a jacket in the intervals between customers. A sleepy cabby, with a cigarette in his mouth, watched her at her work. Presently she put on the coat and began to fit it and fix it with pins. She was examining the sides to see how they hung.

She stooped to plant a pin. But the cabman strode up, bent and fixed it for her, with a "Voila, madam," turned to the other side, measured the distance with his eye and inserted another pin, traveled thus round the garment, doubled a clumsy plant, mumbled "It's too big here," at which she nodded, and then stood back to see the effect.

"Merci, monsieur," she said, took off the jacket and sat down. A "fare" came up; the cabman jumped to his seat, cracked his whip and was off.

FOR THE WOMAN WHO THINKS AND FEELS.

Some women complain that they periodically suffer from dull and heavy feelings, or dizziness in the head, nervousness, pain and bearing-down feelings which should not occur to the normal healthy woman. But most every woman is subject to these pains at some time in her life, due to abnormal conditions in life, such as corsets, over-taxed strength, bad air, poor or improper food, wet feet, sluggish liver, etc. A regulator and female tonic made from native medicinal roots with pure glycerin, and without the use of alcohol, called has proven its value in thousands of cases, like the following:

Mrs. DORA M. MARTIN, of Auburn, Me., Route 1, Box 84, says: "I thought I would write you in regard to what your medicines have done for me. I have used them for thirty years for female trouble and general weakness with the very best result, and they have saved me hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills. I buy the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and take them together. I have been disappointed in your remedies and like pleasure in recommending them to my suffering lady. I am now almost fifty years old; at forty-five I took your medicines, both kinds, and I passed that period very easily and left me fat and healthy. I feel like a young girl."

"If any lady cares to write me, I will gladly tell her more about the good work of your medicines."

DR. PIERCE'S GREAT FAMILY DOCTOR BOOK, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date—of 1108 pages, answers hosts of delicate questions—every woman, single or married, ought to know. GEO. D. THORN'S DUES.

In an issue of the "Gettysburg Times" last week space was given to a knock at Geo. D. Thorn, Chief Clerk of the Office of Secretary of Commonwealth at Harrisburg, under a title suggestively frank "Knocking Thorn." It was surprising that space should have been given such matter under the peculiar circumstances that the paper had not received the constitutional amendment advertisements given out the week before from the office of Secretary of Commonwealth, but it is more surprising to find a number of inaccuracies in the knocking. We believe in the political square deal and because Mr. Thorn is on the other side of the political fence is no reason to indulge in misrepresentation and the "Times" did not even have that excuse.

Mr. Thorn has a knowledge of the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth and its business unequal to any one in the State. He has become an expert in its routine work and has made himself indispensable in the quality of his services and what his critic means by "desultory" or "indifference" is difficult to conceive. They are meaningless as used and only show the effort to want to knock. Mr. Thorn has always made his own department and every department of the State accessible to the people of his county in every way in his power. Anyone who has ever called upon him, or written him has found him the same Geo. D. Thorn as when he lived here, approachable and willing to do anything he could do for an Adams county man and this without regard to politics and not in the way of doing a favor but to show that it pleased him to serve his old friends and neighbors. It has been an advantage to the people of this county to have Mr. Thorn occupying the position he fills with such ability. We are glad to bear witness to many acts of attention courteously received at his hands and would be sad in our eyes if we did not have the gumption to say so.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION.

The attention of the School Board and all citizens are invited to a careful consideration of the recent Act of Assembly on vocational education, which is printed on another page. The information was given out at Harrisburg last week that under this law there is no provision for reimbursement for the teaching of manual training and domestic science as generally conducted and in order to be approved for State aid the courses must be strictly vocational in nature and carried on in accordance with State requirements. The State Board of Education is preparing a bulletin showing the courses to be followed to be entitled to State aid to the extent of two-thirds of the sums expended. It would be poor housekeeping or no housekeeping at all for any school board to conduct courses not having the approval of the State authorities. The school directors should decide the amount the town can expend on vocational education and then add to that sum twice the amount, and after planning courses obtaining the legal approval thereof by the State Education Board and be in position to collect two-thirds from the State of the expenses.

J. F. McKenrick Seriously Ill.

J. F. McKenrick, Esq., a prominent attorney of Ebensburg, Cambria county, Pa., and a native son of Buchanan Valley, this county, being the oldest son of Charles and Barbara McKenrick, now deceased, is very critically ill at his home with little hopes for recovery. He contracted a severe case of jaundice which settled in his lungs and some of the most prominent physicians in the State say he can only live a few weeks. He was a schoolmate and fast friend of Hon. W. A. Martin and nephew of Hon. Frank Cole deceased, and cousin of Hon. Jas. C. Cole.

Sad Ending of Minister's Vacation.

On Saturday, Aug. 23, the vacation of Rev. and Mrs. J. Wm. Ott of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Hagerstown, Md., was brought to a sad end by their little three year old son, Weaver Lyman Ott, being badly bitten in the face by a large Scotch Collie dog, while visiting on the home farm near Rocky Ridge, Md. After the wounds, which were many, were dressed by a nearby physician, the child was taken to Littlestown, Pa., from which place he was removed to the Pasteur Institute, Baltimore, Md., for treatment. The dog has been confined and will be closely watched for further developments, as it is not known whether or not the animal is affected with rabies. The child is an only grand-son of Dr. and Mrs. S. B. Weaver of Littlestown, Pa. The Doctor and the father accompanied the child to the institution, where the latter will remain until the treatment is completed.

The Misses Marion and Hester Blocher, Minerva Taughinbaugh, Sara Reen and Maude Whiteleather are spending this week at Pen-Mar. Miss Maude Bream is chaperoning the party.

Years of Suffering

Catarrh and Blood Disease

Doctors Failed to Cure.

Miss Mabel F. Dickson, 1214 Lafayette St., Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "After three years I was troubled with catarrh and blood disease. I tried several doctors and a dozen different medicines, but none of them did me any good. A friend told me of Foley's Kidney Pills. I took two boxes of these wonderful pills and was well and strong again. I feel like a different person and recommend Foley's Kidney Pills to all suffering from catarrh." "I feel today as well as I did when I was a child." Mabel F. Dickson.

SCHOOLS OPEN NEXT WEEK

THE ASSIGNMENT OF SCHOLARS FOR TOWN SCHOOLS.

The Census of Public School Pupils Reaches Nearly 700—An Increase of 50.

Miss Sachs, Mrs. Witherow, Mrs. Wible, Miss McGrew and Miss Maude Miller will have respectively pupils of the second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades belonging to the High Street section of the town.

Pupils who were not given promotion certificates must report to the same grade as last year. Any in doubt as to where they belong may inquire of the teachers on Saturday.

All pupils of the seventh and eighth grades will report to Miss Rummel in the large room upstairs in the Meade Building. This year the Grammar School will be taught on the departmental plan. Miss Rummel will teach art, sewing, civics and arithmetic; Miss Benner, English, physiology and writing; Miss Carrie Miller, geography, spelling and reading. Miss Benner and Miss Miller will occupy the class rooms on the second floor.

At the High School the plan of work will be practically the same as last year except that domestic science and domestic art will be added for all of the girls and all of the art work for boys and girls will be applied art as related to practical work. The girls of the school will be taught domestic science in five sections and the schedule is so arranged that each section will have one hour and a half each week in cooking, the same amount of time in sewing and one hour each week in art. In the senior class household chemistry will substitute for physics for the girls. What was formerly the art room is now being fitted up for the domestic science department. The library also will be used as a sewing room.

With book-keeping, shorthand and typewriting for our commercial pupils, practical training for the boys, domestic science for the girls and a constructive art course in all the grades, our school now should give some of the practical training which modern times demand. What we need next is a more complete and it is hoped that with the next year we will be able to do this. The Teachers' Association, a plan will be worked out by which music may be taught at least in some of the schools this year.

The School Manual containing the revised course of study is now being published and will be distributed to the older pupils when school opens. Persons desiring copies may receive them upon application. Some important changes for parents to note are that reports will be sent home every six weeks instead of monthly as before, and that in the High School credit will be given pupils for useful home work. This plan is explained in the manual and on the report cards and parents are invited to co-operate with the school in thus guiding the energies of the boys and girls in proper directions.

County Sunday School Convention

The Fourteenth Annual County Convention of the Sunday Schools of Adams County was held at Biglerville on last Thursday and Friday, August 21st and 22nd. It was the largest gathering of the Sunday School Association ever held in the county. One hundred and fifty delegates reported, and according to the enrollment these delegates represented 12,907 people of the county or one third of the population. The convention was a success inspirationally. There was disappointment at just one point, the continuous rain on Friday making it impossible to hold the parade for which extensive preparations had been made.

At the first session on Thursday afternoon Rev. C. F. Photo, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, of Biglerville in which the convention was held presented the greetings of welcome for his people and town.

At the business session for the election of officers, the following were elected for the ensuing year: President, E. P. Miller, Gettysburg; Vice Presidents, Mervin Wintrobe, Littlestown, Chas. Rife, Orrtanna; L. B. Lau, East Berlin; M. L. Power, Bermudian; Rev. T. C. Hesson, Arendtsville; General Secretary, Lily Dougherty, Gettysburg; Recording Secretary, Rhea March, Abbottstown; Assistant, Alma Henry, Cashtown; Treasurer, I. C. Burcher, Bendersville; Musical Director, I. L. Taylor, Gettysburg.

Department Superintendents: Elementary, H. F. Scrambaugh, Abbottstown; Secondary, Myrtle Watkins, Biglerville; O. A. B. C. Wm. B. Deardorff, Mummansburg; Teacher Training, 1st, 3rd and 4th Districts, H. W. Swartz, Littlestown; 2nd, 5th and 6th, R. D. Knouse, Arendtsville; Home Department, L. M. Alleman, Littlestown. Mr. E. P. Miller who enters upon his second year as president of the Association spoke briefly to the convention. Thursday afternoon calling attention to the purposes for which the delegates came and that the gathering would only have been worth while provided each one took home some thought or inspiration to help make the home school better or more effective in its work.

EDWARD P. MILLER.

Mr. E. P. Miller, the president has lived the past seven years in Gettysburg his residence on York Street, and he is connected with the managing force of the two furniture plants of this place, the Reaser and the Gettysburg Furniture Companies. Mr. Miller, while born in York county has lived in Adams county since he was four years old. He was in the mercantile business of Abbottstown for nineteen years before coming to Gettysburg, and served as Postmaster of Abbottstown for four years under President Cleveland. He has always been interested in those things that mean progress and advancement for his home county or town.

The full program of the convention as outlined in the previous issue was carried out in detail.

St. John's Church, near Littlestown, was selected as the place of meeting for the 1914 Convention.

The Teacher Training Alumni Luncheon was attended by fifty-eight graduates and at this time a permanent organization was formed, with the following as officers: President, R. D. Knouse; Vice President, Mervin Wintrobe; Secretary and Treasurer, G. H. Knouse; Vice President, Mervin Wintrobe. This association is to increase the interest in this important work. One hundred graduates is the goal for 1914. The County still holds its position in the State as a Front Line County, with an increase along all lines of work.

The following were elected delegates to the State Convention to be held at Williamsport, in October: E. P. Miller, Wm. B. Deardorff, Rev. Stocklager and Lily Dougherty.

The County is entitled to thirty-five delegates and any one wanting to attend the convention as a delegate from the County can receive credentials by notifying the General Secretary.

Every day rooms are being engaged for the fall term which begins Tuesday, September 9th. This is done by writing to the principal. Admission to the Regular Course is by examination. Teachers' Certificate, or High School Diploma. Special courses in Voice Culture and Instrumental Music in addition to the Regular Normal Course. One year of Practice Teaching under close supervision in the Model School required of all graduates of the Millersville Normal.

The Moon and the Ocean

Together They Exert a Peculiar Influence

By RYLAND BELL

Ernest Southmayd, a young American, finding a business opening in Hongkong, China, went out there to live. He prospered, but somehow never reached a point where he felt satisfied with his exile. It occurred to him that if he were married he would cease to be constantly pining for home and be content to wait before returning to America till he could make himself financially independent.

As to marrying a Chinese woman, that was not to be thought of. The English women he met in China he did not fancy, and there were very few Americans there. It would be next to impossible for him to return home, and even if he could do so to make such a trip for the purpose of marrying a wife with no woman in view would be absurd. It occurred to him that he might open a correspondence with some one of the girls he had known before his departure for China, which might ripen into if not love, at least a matrimonial arrangement that would bring love after marriage.

Almost every young man who has exiled himself can think of some girl he has left behind him whom he would prefer to others. Southmayd had looked with a kindly eye upon Julia Courtney, the sister of an intimate friend of his. He had never made love to her, nor had she shown any special preference for him. Nevertheless if she could be induced—for the sake of a home, if nothing more—to come out to China and marry him he was perfectly ready to fulfill his part of such a plan himself.

So he sat down and wrote her brother Stephen a long letter, telling him about his prospects, the life he led, etc., and asking him to reply, giving him all the home news. In his letter he adopted a method common with women—he put the principal part of it in a postscript.

If you haven't time to write me the home news please ask your sister to take pity on a poor exile and do it for you.

Whether or not Julia had a faking of what this meant when her brother showed her the postscript and said to her that what Southmayd wanted she could do better than he, she said she would "see about it" and in time wrote ten or twelve pages of home news, a part of which was rather home gossip, and sent it off over the waters to Ernest Southmayd.

In due time the plan worked out as the recipient had intended. After writing for a time on general topics Southmayd began to hint at what he wished for, and Julia, being a practical person, helped him on by writing what might mean nothing or might mean a great deal.

The truth is Julia was twenty-four years of age. No matrimonial rain cloud had appeared in the sky, and she began to fear a perpetual drought. After months of correspondence she not only consented to marry Southmayd, but agreed to go to China for that purpose.

By the time the young woman started on her journey, which, if not a bridal trip, was at least a trip for the purpose of becoming a bride, eleven months had elapsed since the correspondence had been opened. From practical planning Southmayd had worked himself up to fever heat. The last letters he wrote to Julia to reach her before she sailed were almost love-letters. She would proceed all the way by water, crossing the Atlantic, sailing the length of the Mediterranean, thence through the Suez canal to eastern waters.

Southmayd counted every day till she was due to arrive in Hongkong. When the ship came in he was on hand to meet her; but, though he watched for her among the passengers to come ashore, he saw nothing of her. When the last person had passed him he felt sure that he had seen every woman's face but one. That one woman was veiled and was attended by an Englishman in army uniform.

The groom expectant was surprised, appalled. What did it mean? Roaming the steamer, he asked the purser if the name of Julia Courtney appeared on the passenger list. He was informed that a passenger by that name had been transferred from a ship sailing from New York to Naples, but she had been married soon after passing out from the Suez canal to Captain Clapham of the Seventy-first regiment of British foot.

Southmayd reeled. Something was surely wrong.

"Why," he said, "Miss Julia Courtney came from New York to marry me."

The purser looked at the disappointed man pityingly. "My dear sir," he said, "you're not the first man who has expected a bride and found one—the bride of another. I've been on the salt water many years, and there's something about it that draws the sexes together. I've seen young women start out to be missionaries and turned into wives before reaching port. And I can count up a number of women during my sea life that have gone out to marry certain men and got switched off with others during the voyage."

Southmayd went home greatly disappointed. For a year he had been planning to bring out a wife for hisself, only to have her snatched up by another before he could get her to Hongkong.

He found at his home—it had just arrived a note from the girl who had come out to marry him and married another man on the way. She made no effort to excuse herself. She admitted that she had treated him shamefully, but said she simply couldn't help it. He wrote a number of replies, but tore them all up, intending when he had recovered from the shock to write her something magnanimous. But he never could think of anything appropriate to say to her. He couldn't very well say "It's of no consequence. I assure you," nor could he say that she had "pained him deeply," for the first would be uncomplimentary and the second would be blame. So the lady never received a reply to her note.

But Southmayd was not a man to be easily discouraged. Since the beginning of his correspondence courtship he had got his business affairs into such shape that he might leave them for a short period. He determined that if he made another engagement, rather than have his bride elect risk the fascination of a sea voyage he would go to her. This was the result of his experience with his first fiancée, contrived by the information he had derived from the purser. He had not before been aware that the sexes, thrown together within the narrow compass of a ship, during a voyage were so liable to be brought down by the tender passion. He had supposed that most of them were victims of seasickness, and, as for himself when in that condition Venus herself would have no attraction for him. But he firmly resolved that he would never take the same risk a second time.

In time a letter came from his old friend, Stephen Courtney. Stephen expressed his regret that Ernest had suffered such a disappointment, and there was really nothing else to be said in the premises. Stephen went on to say that he felt it incumbent on him—and his sister had suggested it—that he should find his friend a girl to take the place of the one who had disappointed him. Stephen had married and he gave a broad hint that he thought his wife's sister would fill the bill. Southmayd was ready to catch at anything to heal his wound. The result was that a correspondence was arranged similar to the last one, except in this case, the object being from the first more definitely understood—the period was shorter. In due time the lady, Miss Alice Hathaway, consented to the nuptials. Southmayd wrote that he would go to America to claim his bride. But Miss Hathaway replied that she wished to procure her tressourea abroad and would prefer to meet him in Paris and marry him there.

Southmayd did not like to risk his fiancée even for a passage of the Atlantic ocean, but couldn't very well tell her that he had so little faith in her. So he assented to her plan. As he was preparing to start he received word from her that she had changed her plans and was sailing on the Mediterranean trip for Naples. This was a greater risk than he had bargained for, the distance to be traveled being greater, and the weather on this route being usually balmy, there would be more opportunity for flirting. But there was no way to call a halt, and he set sail to meet his bride.

It is quite a voyage from Hongkong to Naples, and a great deal transpired before Southmayd reached the latter point. He was to meet his bride in the hotel, and soon after going ashore he called upon her. The meeting was constrained on both sides. It did not seem that either was disappointed in the other, but there was nothing especially cordial, certainly not lover-like between them. But love was hardly to be expected by two persons who had not met before. After some ten minutes of interchange of commonplace remarks Southmayd said bluntly:

"You do not seem especially pleased to meet me. There is something of your mind—something concealed. I trust I am not about to hear that you have been married on the voyage."

"Not married, but I presume I may as well confess now as later. I cannot marry you."

"Are you disappointed in me?"

"By no means. Had you come for me I should have married you willingly. As it is, on the steamer coming out—"

"I knew it. On the steamer coming out you met a gentleman who walked the deck with you, sat by you in a steamer chair, read bits of romance or poetry to you, leaned over the foremast rail in the moonlight when the ship was bounding over the billows. You placed your hand on the rail to steady yourself. His hand fell upon yours. You—"

"How do you know all this?" she interrupted.

"How do I know it? Because I have just been through the same experience myself. On the steamer between Hongkong and the canal I fell in with a lady as you fell in with this gentleman. The moon shined down on you and him, shone on me and this lady. I had my hand on hers and—"

"Enough. Are you engaged or married?"

"Married. When I found that I must yield to the fascination of an ocean trip with a beautiful woman and at the end of the voyage face one to whom I was already pledged I made up my mind to have it over with before I left the ship and face you already as a married man."

The lady stood staring at him for a few moments, then said:

"What's the matter with the ocean, anyway, that it plays with us thus?"

"I don't know," Byron says, "The devil's in the moon for mischief." He should have added "a sea voyage."

Tipping in Austria.
"You know the value of tips in the United States," writes a man from Prague, who visited this country for the first time two years ago, "and you are more liberal than we are in that respect, but such a thing as tipping a railway conductor is not known to the tourist in America. Here in Austria the custom is so well established that the refusal of a conductor on a Buchs-Jimbruck train to accept a thankoff from a passenger who had been allowed to ride alone in a compartment has caused unusual comment. The title 'White Raven' was conferred on the conductor, who emphasized his displeasure at being tempted by having the passenger summoned before a magistrate on the charge of attempted bribery. Do not let that trouble you, however, when you come here, because the tipping malefactor was discharged, and the magistrate's contemptuous look at the conductor indicated that his opinion of a man who would not take a tip was unfit for publication."—New York Tribune.

Cooked Meats.
Boiled meat may lose some of its best food-stuff properties if too much water is used in its boiling or if it is taken from the water in which it is boiling, instead of allowing it to remain and recover by absorption some of its valuable properties. Eight pounds of beef after it is boiled will weigh six and a half pounds. After it is baked it will lose two pounds and six ounces. After it is roasted it will lose three pounds and ten ounces. Other meats lose almost in the same proportions when it is cooked. It will be noticed that roasting meat causes it to decrease considerably more than boiling. One great trouble, of course, in boiling meat is that it loses nearly 45 per cent of its mineral matter and 12 per cent of its fats and nearly 8 per cent of its proteins. Housewives should not worry over this, however, when it is known that there is a greater percentage of nutriment in cooked meats, notwithstanding the loss by cooking, than there is in raw meats.—New York American.

Satisfied His Curiosity.
Bayard Taylor's widest fame was won as a traveler and a lecturer on his travels. He prided himself on his poetry more than on his prose. One can imagine therefore the sort of grim amusement he felt in telling this story—and he often told it to his friends:
"I had delivered a lecture in a rural town out west, and several of my auditors were accosting me with expressions of their satisfaction. One person in particular was effusively eager, saying: 'I am delighted, Mr. Taylor, to make your acquaintance. I have read everything you have ever written and have greatly enjoyed it all.' This was pleasant to hear, and, as he grasped my hand with evident friendship, I responded with a request for his opinion of my poetry. A look of overwhelming astonishment and perplexity came into his face. 'Your poetry?' he exclaimed. 'Have you ever written any poetry?' This, I need not tell you, fully satisfied my curiosity."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Mad Paul of Russia.
Russia's first Paul was no less insane than his father, Peter III., although his madness was longer in manifesting itself. So violent was his hatred of the revolutionary round hats, a fashion imported from France, that one day he sent 200 police and dragoons to scour the streets of St. Petersburg and tear them from the heads of all who wore them. He banished all the cabmen from his capital because one of them was found with a pair of pistols on him. Hundreds of his officers and courtiers were sent in chains to Siberia for a glance or a word that displeased him, many without any cause at all, and he sent an entire regiment on a 2,000 mile march because in drilling it had failed to understand one of his indistinct words of command.

Aerial Analysis.
If the late Wilbur Wright ever had a romance he managed to keep the secret, and no one seemed to know. However, he was not without views on the subject. A reporter once asked him why he had never married. "It's the easiest thing in the world to drive an aeroplane," he answered, "and it's just as easy to get married." Then he added, "Women and aeroplanes are so much alike that you can't analyze either until you get them going."

Strong Woman.
"Father," said little Herbert, "why doesn't mother travel with the circus?"
"What could she do in a circus?"
"She might be the strong woman. I heard her tellin' grandma this morning that she could wind you around her little finger."—Judge.
